Stock market hours

NEW YORK (TheStreet) -- Stocks fell sharply in the final hours of trading Thursday as tech stocks reversed early gains and mid-cap stocks looked on fire. The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which was negative for most of the session, fell in the final hours of trading. The blue-chip index was down 76 points, or 0.7 percent, at 10.662. The S&P 500 fell 9 points, or 0.8 percent, to 1.125, below its key technical level of 1.130. Nasdaq, which had been up for much of the day, also bowed to selling pressure, losing 7 points, or 0.3 percent, to end the day at 2.327. Walt Disney (DIS) - Get Report, JPMorgan Chase (JPM) - Get Report, General Electric (GE) - Get Report and Bank of America (BAC) - Getting the report lowered the Dow by more than 2% each. Alcoa (AA) - Get report, Hewlett-Packard (HPQ) - Getting the report was one of the dow's few gains, up 0.3% and 1.5%, respectively. Of the Dow's 30 components, 26 ended in red. The index itself fell twice in a row, but still rose 6.4 percent in September, one of the worst months for stocks in history. From a sector perspective, stocks in financial, transport and capital goods were the worst hit. The overall market width of the New York Stock Exchange was also very negative, with the rate of decline outperforming the advances by a ratio of 7-2. The session got off to an ugly start as European stock markets fell broadly after a survey of eurozone purchasing managers came in at 53.8 from 56.2 in August. Ireland's economy also shrank, raising concerns about europe's economic recovery. London's FTSE fell 0.9 percent and Frankfurt's DAX fell 0.4 percent. Hong Kong's Hang Seng and Japan's Nikkei were closed, making it a quiet day for Asian markets. The Labor Department then said its first weekly jobless claims increased from 12,000 to 465,000 in the week to September 18, surpassing the 450,000 claims economists had .com. The 10-year average of jobless claims was 393,000, including during the real estate boom. We're still about 70,000 above that average, Michael Pent, senior economist at Euro Pacific Capital, told TheStreet. Even though the so-called recession is over, there is no job growth, Mr Pent said, noting that companies were not yet hiring, despite possible slowdowns in layoffs. In other economic news, the National Association of Realtors said existing home sales increased to 4.13 million in August from 3.84 million previously, meeting Wall Street expectations, according to The Briefing .com. The conference committee's main index of indicators rose 0.3 percent in August, exceeding growth expectations of 0.1 percent. August's level compares with a 0.1 percent rise in July. Jay Suskind, senior vice president at Duncan Williams, said the morning's economic report was pretty good. The jobs data did not suggest any kind of rebound, strengthening expectations for modest GDP growth of 1% to 2%. Housing is two areas that are preventing the economy from improving, so the economy will continue until the economy turns around, the market rose from a Report by the National Bureau of Economic Research earlier this week that the recession officially ended in June 2009. But with unemployment remaining high, investors now feel there is little upt. In an interview that appeared early Thursday morning on CNBC's Squawk Box, legendary investor Warren Buffet said the U.S. economy was still in recession. By common sense definition, if the average American is below where it used to be, or if his family is below GDP in terms of real income, we're still in recession. And we're not going to get out of it for a while, but we'll get out of it, Buffett told CNBC. Still, stock prices are still high this month. It's been a good month and as we're nearing the end of the third quarter, you'll start to get the level to clean up positions, Suskind said, adding that the focus will start to shift to earnings. The economy is growing slowly, but I think the fear of a double dip is pretty off the table right now. I think it was an important mark for the S&P 500 to hit 1130 and you get the feeling that the market wants to move higher. But I think we will continue to stay within this trading range and probably at the top end until the election. In commodity markets, natural gas prices settled slightly higher after the Energy Information Administration said natural gas storage levels added 73 billion cubic feet in the week ended September 17, below the 7.7 to 81 billion cubic feet injection range that analysts polled by Platts had expected. Elsewhere in commodity markets, the December gold contract settled $4.2 higher at $1,296.30 an ounce. The tech sector was at its best performance in the session with Tesco Technologies (TESS) - get a report and a red hat (RHT) - among its biggest profiteers. Discovery Group has written to Tesco's board, relaying its interest in buying all shares it does not ally own for $15.50 a share, according to a Bloomberg report citing regulatory filings. Red Hat, meanwhile, was on a better-than-expected second-quarter profit. Tesco shares closed 23% higher at $15.18, while Shares in Red Hat were up 9% at $40.05. GLAXOSMITHKLINE (GSK) SHARES - The Get Report fell 1.8% to $39.43 on news that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration will significantly limit the use of the diabetes drug Avandia to people with type 2 diabetes who cannot manage the condition with other drugs.(Broca. Whether the fact that the bond market is closed helps or hurts is a subject of debate. The Dow is up 3.9 percent this week, and Monday and Tuesday are great. That's ahead of a 1 percent rise in the S&P 500 and a 2.9 percent drop in the Nasdaq Composite. Expectations for the Pfizer (ticker: PFE) vaccine after the company released early data have lifted energy stocks and industries, while the tech sector has fallen. What is Veterans Day? The holiday's name was changed to Veterans Day in 1954 and was intended to honor all veterans as well as those who fought in World War I. In 1968, attempts were made to change the date on the fourth Monday of October, but were returned on November 11, 1978, after many states molted. Yes, the stock market is open on Veterans Day, but good luck trying to buy treasury, the bond market is closed. So do most banks and schools. Because Veterans Day is a federal holiday, mail is not delivered because the U.S. Postal Service is closed and no trash is picked up. But at least it's not the other way through. What was the stock market's performance on Veterans Day in 2020? the stock market averaged 0.1% profit on Veterans Day dating back to 1954, with the biggest move rising in 1979 when it gained 1.97%. Its biggest fall occurred in 2000, when it fell 2.44 percent. On Monday morning, after Joe Biden was declared the winner of the 2020 presidential election, the overall market was boosted and an even bigger one rose when Pfizer announced that early data showed a 90 percent efficacy rate for the Covid-19 vaccine. Expectations for a faster economy/lt left high-flying high-tech stocks that did not need a strong economy for growth, spurring investors. Still, while President Donald Trump has yet to make concessions and continues to contest the election results, the vaccine will not be widely available for some time. After such a wild movement, a little attention may be in place. The best Veterans Day performance of the Corrections and Amplification S&P 500 occurred in 1979.
